It is a game which will allow you to experience the breath-taking scale of fantasy warfare in a new and more exciting way. When you first launch the game you will be presented with a list of all your cities, and you will be able to choose which of them to build and which to expand upon. Your cities are in three different tiers, and every time that you successfully defend a city you will be awarded rewards, as well as being able to choose which city to expand on. This will have the effect of unlocking more buildings for you to construct, as well as unlocking the rewards that you need to help you expand further. You will be able to choose the starting location of any province for your first settlement. You will be able to use the game and the world as you see fit to achieve victory. You will have the freedom to move your units as you see fit, you will be able to use diplomacy, war, and politics to succeed or fail. Should you choose to expand, you will then be able to choose from a myriad of customisable units, which will allow you to play the game in any way that suits your style of play. Inspiration: In order to create the world of Thrones of Britannia we started with our own imagination. We started to create the world, the technology, the politics, the religion, the geography, and then we began to create the characters. From there we developed the world into the most immersive and entertaining Total War yet. Inspirations of different eras: We have used many different inspirations to create the world of Thrones of Britannia. The shape of the landmass, the climate, the geography and the political system are all based on the real world. We have also taken inspiration from many different eras in history. We have used historical documents to create the religious system, and we have used a huge range of sources to develop the technology. Innovation: We are constantly trying to innovate and improve the way we play Total War. In many ways we are keeping pace with the world of technology. We are constantly working to improve the way we use the technology and to improve the way we work as a team. We have changed and improved many parts of the game from when we first made the game. The AI improvements are the most visible of all the things that we have worked on, and that has benefited other areas of the game. Thrones of Britannia is different: Thrones of Britannia 82157476af
